RESIDENT'S MESSAGE

John Ostendorf, R-518

Dear fellow sales tax token collectors,

I hope this letter finds you well. Thank you once again for renewing.

2020 was a strange year to say the least. 2021 holds the promise of us getting this pandemic behind us so we can go back to normal life. I look forward to going to coin shows again, even if it is just to catch up with old friends.

Here's hoping we all have a much better 2021. It would be great to meet up at a coin show somewhere.

Happy collecting, John

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Send your own questions, comments, corrections, or information to:

BILL at: Wjmhands@gmail.com

This is the start of the 50th year of the American Tax Token Society. I assume the members have received their anniversary sales tax token made by our president John Ostendorf. I think he did a great job.

I want to remind everyone that the ATTS cannot operate with a deficit like the US government so please pay your dues now. You can pay by paypal but if you choose to pay by check please make it out to Jim Calvert. It must be done that way to keep club expenses down.

Nick Sapone relates how he got involved in collecting sales tax tokens. He has contributed some of the most detailed studies on sales tax tokens.

I have written on what could have been rather then what is when I discuss the Townsend Plan.

Joseph McCarthy lists the most recent treasures he has found. Joseph finds interesting items to add to his collection. I am sure the membership has found additions to their collections so drop me a line and a picture so I can share it.

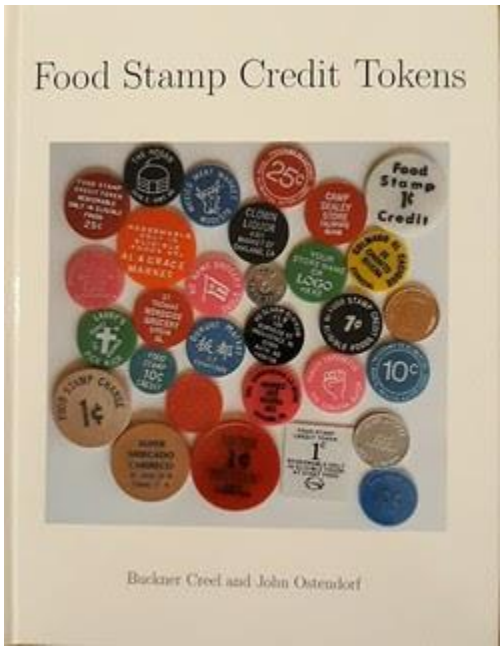
I want to give kudos to any of our membership that have a recent accomplishment. For this issue it is our president John Ostendorf. John has released the book Food Stamp Credit Tokens which he wrote with Buckner Creel. It has over 500 pages of information with over 9,500 listings from all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the U.S. Virgin Islands. Also included is the most information published to date on various manufacturers with photographs of stock reverses, including sub-varieties.

More information on the book can be found at https://www.lulu.com/en/us/shop/john-ostendorf-and-buckner-creel/food-stamp-credit-tokens/hardcover/product-pw6v82.html

I am sure most of the members collect numismatic items other then sales tax tokens. I have some food stamp tokens and it is nice to see a new reference.

I have been working on a book for many years and I know the time commitment and dedication it takes and admire John for completing the task.

I found out about John's book on E-Sylum and request if any of the membership have an accomplishment please let me know, no need to be modest.



2021 is the 50th anniversary of the ATTS and for part of the event I would like to publish articles about how you became interested in Sales Tax Tokens, interesting stories you have related to tax tokens or anything you think would be interesting. I have 4 submissions so far (3 already published), but I need more. Most of us are home more than usual so please take the times to jot something down and send it to me by E-mail or snail mail.

John Ostendorf created a stamped Missouri 1 mill sales tax token to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the ATTS.

PLEASE NOTE: If you are emailing me I would greatly appreciate it if you would supply your full name and membership number. I have received an email from "Jack" and I don't recognize the name off-hand or the email address either. So in order for me to list it here I have to go through my entire email address book looking for "Jack". Likewise, if you don't include your return address on a snail mail, please give me your full name on the written enclosure. Thanks for saving me a little time. I do appreciate EVERY contact but this identification would also be appreciated. My sincere thanks, as always.

HOW I GOT STARTED IN COLLECTING SALES TAX TOKENS
BY NICK SAPONE R-517

Like most members, I have some interest in the entire range of different sales tax tokens and related material. The punch cards, Ohio receipts, Missouri milk-tops, Tenino woods, and most of the others are of interest as well, but my main interest is in the tokens and their great variety of differences.

There are round tokens and square tokens in different sizes, with some of them made of different materials, from a variety of metals to a range of different kinds of fiber tokens, and plastic. Even paper tax tokens were made.

Many tax tokens also have a center hole in one shape or another, with some punch and die varieties to be found among them. There seems to be such a great variety of endless differences among tax tokens that it causes me to wonder if all of their differences have been found.

This should also cause some collectors, especially those interested in error tokens, to be curious about "how" these tokens were made, which could lead them to learning that there was a variety of different minting methods used to make these and other tokens, with much of that technology remaining forgotten about and unexplored.

There were notable changes and improvements being made over time as this minting equipment was improved upon, with that alone being the cause of many token varieties, and the different minting methods have caused more.

There is also a lot of history to be learned about tax tokens that can easily lead into other fields of study.

It can also happen the other way around, because I was first attracted to tax tokens through my study of ration tokens and other fiber tokens. There is much to be learned about fiber tokens in general and about how some of them relate with tax tokens. It was actually the large number of different fiber sales tax tokens that were available, that led me to collecting tax tokens and then to join ATTS to learn more about them.

Tax token production coincides with some of the important changes that were being made at the most popular token minters in the late 1930's to early 1940's era. Some tax tokens were made by other companies as well, using different and earlier methods. With token minting technology slowly but steadily evolving, there was often a mixture of different kinds of minting equipment in production at the same time. This becomes evident when multiple varieties of the same tokens are found, which has led to some amazing discoveries about the early die types.

Over time, there were a number of improvements made in the fiber token material as well, making it more durable, and the multiple die system enabled a much higher rate of production and efficiency. Industrial records of this time seem to be lost or not available. However, we can still learn more about the early die equipment from its error tokens, because they have kept a secret record of the evolution of token minting for us to find. But it is well hidden in the tokens and errors as a mechanical code for us to decipher. That code has been cracked and has already been used to learn some surprising new things about the early die equipment. And that information has allowed us to explain those mysterious error tokens that collectors have wondered about for decades.

There are examples of fiber tax tokens in our collections that represent the entire range of changes in fiber token development. Those tokens are helpful in the study of minting technology from an earlier time, and the coded messages in their errors can tell us much more.

I enjoy collecting and studying the great variety of fiber sales tax tokens, especially from my "different viewpoint" of them, and it didn't take long to begin the irresistible hunt for other tax tokens as well.

The joy of adding another tax token to your collection is enhanced when you know more about them.

THE TOWNSEND PLAN: A SALES TAX THAT NEVER HAPPENED
BY BILL MYERS R-570

I recently bought a packet of material about the Townsend Plan (a booklet and 2 small posters). I admit at the time I bought it I did not know anything about it.

Dr Francis Townsend was a physician and during the depression noticed two elderly women digging through trash cans to find something to eat. In 1933 he proposed a plan to provide $200 per month income for the elderly. The requirements were the recipient was 60 years old or older, be retired, their past life is free from habitual criminality and the money had to be spent within 30 days of receipt. The Townsend Plan was very popular and 7000 Townsend Clubs with 2.2 million members supported the plan. The plan was not accepted by Congress and the Social Security Act of 1935 was passed instead.

I am sure the membership is wondering if I put this article in the correct newsletter. The biggest issue is how did Townsend plan on paying for his plan. It was to be paid for by a 2% Transaction Tax. It is essentially a national sales tax on goods and services and is like the Value Added Tax in many countries. At the time the Townsend Plan was proposed it would have doubled the taxes US citizens were paying.

Sales Tax tokens were created to prevent the consumer from overpaying the sales tax. I feel the Transaction Tax would have generated the same need for a way to pay the consumer fractions of a cent. If the Townsend Plan had passed, we might have been collecting National Sales Tax Tokens today.

Celebrating Washington's Centennial
Washington's Sales Tax Token
(1935-1951)
If you were born after 1950, you may never have seen (or heard) of a tax token like the one attached to this card. Tax tokens took several shapes between 1935 and 1951 when they were used in Washington State. The most popular was the aluminum token with a center hole. About 185 million of them were distributed.
Washington pioneered the issuance of tax tokens and survived a U.S. Treasury challenge of them as coinage. Originally tokens were worth 1/5 cent and later 1/3 cent. The first ones were printed on 1x2-inch lithographed paper for use until the metal coins were minted. During World War II metal tokens were replaced by dark green fiber and shiny green plastic ones. After the War, aluminum tokens were used once more.
Washington's residents found other creative uses for the tokens such as poker chips, washers, fishing tackle and as decorations on hat bands and students' shoe laces. Tokens also made excellent bulls-eyes in target practice.
Replaced by pennies in 1951, tax tokens are now a collector's item—especially the early editions and paper script.
